STAGE SET FOR CONVENTION CALL TO ORDER AT 12 TODAY

San Francisco, June 27.-The great exposition auditorium was ready tonight for the opening of the Democratic convention tomorrow. It has been surrounded by a fence. The hall has been renovated, refurnished and decorated for the convention. Architecturally it is a gem adorned with colorful flags and banfiers.

The building inside has the form of a theater with seating arrangements for 10,000. The main floor differs from that ordinarily found in a theater by being nearly flat. There will be a total of 1,092 votes. Behind the delegates, under the galleries, the alternates will be seated.

Ten thousand tickets have been distributed as follows: To delegates and alternates, 4,368; to members of the National Committee, 2,600; to the press, 600; the woman's auxiliary, 2,507; distinguished guests, 300, and the remainder to the public.

Wilson is on the verge of "windication' he demands at the hands of the Democratic party. It will take the form of a mighty demonstration in his honor at tomorrow's opening of the national convention.

Homer Cummings, national chairman, has been assigned the task, not merely of sounding the party keynote for 1920, but of giving the signal fo ra tumult on behalf of the invalid leader of the ofganization. As at present arranged, the demonstration is to be the overwhelmingly outstanding event of the opening session. Predictions are made that it will last one full hour, it has been carefully staged. Delegates, floor and galleries, are to play their part in a spectacular and vociferous ovation, which is designed to rival in longevity and organized racket, the biggest noise in

It is not certain whether the demonstration will follow Chairman Cummings' first and intermediate reference to the President, or be held in check until the full inwardness of the speakers' tribute has percolated through the convention's consciousness and stirred its passions to the depths.
